17 USA v. Palermino, C 07-01326 VRW)

MEMORANDUM OF LAW IN REPLY
TO USA'S OPPOSITION TO ACLU-CT'S MOTION FOR PARTIAL
SUMMARY JUDGMENT

18) Date: June 14, 2007

19) Time: 2:00 p.m.

20) Courtroom: 6, 17th Floor

21 Prior to the transfer of USA v. Palermino, C 07-01326 VRW, from the District of 22 Connecticut to this Court, the parties to that action had already filed cross-motions for summary
 23 judgment and opposition briefs. However, the litigation was transferred to this Court prior to the 24 completion of reply briefing. Pursuant to this Court's March 26, 2007 Scheduling Order (Doc
 25 #219), the American Civil Liberties Union of Connecticut ("ACTU-CT") now files this reply
 26 memorandum in response to the United States of America's ("United States") opposition to the 27 ACLU-CT's Motion for Partial Summary Judgment.

ACLU'S SUMMARY JUDGMENT REPLY
 MDL No. 06-1791 VRW
 CASE NO. C-07-1326 VRW

1 STATEMENT OF ISSUE TO BE DECIDED

2 Whether to grant the ACLU-CT's motion for partial summary judgment.

3 STATEMENT OF RELEVANT FACTS

4 As set forth in the ACLU-CT's opening memorandum (Doc. #1-55) ("ACLU-CT Open.
5 Mem."), the ACLU-CT on May 24, 2006 filed a complaint before the Connecticut Department of
6 Public Utility Control ("DPUC") against SBC Communications, Inc., d/b/a Southern New
7 England Telecommunications Corp. and Woodbury Telephone Company (collectively, "AT&T")
8 and Verizon New York and related entities (collectively, "Verizon") (the "State Action"). In the 9 State Action, the ACLU-CT requested that the DPUC investigate allegations that AT&T and 10 Verizon may have violated DPUC rules or regulations or state or federal laws or regulations by 11 disclosing the Proprietary Network Information ("CPNI") of their customers, without proper 12 legal basis or authority and in violation of their published privacy policies.

14 On August 10, 2006, the ACLU-CT issued interrogatories (the "Interrogatories") to 15 AT&T (nos. 1-12) and Verizon (nos. 13-24). See Exs. B & C attached to the Statement of 16 Material Facts submitted in conjunction with the ACLU-CT's Open. Mem. (Doc. #1-55). The 17 two sets of interrogatories are substantively identical except for the identity of the recipient.
18 Most of the Interrogatories seek information only about AT&T and Verizon's internal privacy
19 practices and decision makers. See Interrogatories No. 1-4, 6-7 and 10-12 with regard to AT&T
20 and 13-16, 18-19 and 22-24 with regard to Verizon. Only three of the twelve interrogatories
21 served on each of AT&T or Verizon seek any information whatsoever about disclosures to third
22 parties, including the United States. See Interrogatories No. 5, 8-9 with regard to AT&T and 17,
23 20-21 with regard to Verizon.
24

25 On September 6, 2006, the United States filed an action in the District of Connecticut
26 seeking to bar AT&T and Verizon from responding to, and the DPUC from ordering responses
27
28

1 to, any of the Interrogatories. However, that complaint referenced only two of the twelve
2 interrogatories served on each party. Consequently, on December 12, 2006, the ACLU-CT
3 moved for summary judgment as to the Interrogatories for which there is no allegation (or 4 support) that they implicate national security concerns (the “Internal Policy Interrogatories”).
5 See ACLU-CT Open. Mem.(Doc. #1-55), pp. 4-6.

7 ARGUMENT

8 I. THE UNITED STATES DOES NOT DISPUTE THAT THE INTERNAL POLICY 9 INTERROGATORIES DO NOT IMPLICATE NATIONAL SECURITY 10 CONCERNS

11 The United States does not does not dispute that the Internal Policy Interrogatories do not
12 touch upon any national security interests. See United States Combined Opposition
13 Memorandum (“U.S. Combined Opp. Mem.”) (Doc. #1-66) at 36-37. Indeed, the United States
14 does not substantively address the ACLU-CT’s arguments at all. Rather, in response to the 15 ACLU-CT’s motion the United States simply reiterates its contention that the DPUC lacks the 16 constitutional authority to hold these proceedings in the first place. Id. However, as explained in 17 detail in the DPUC’s Opening Memorandum in Support of its Motion for Summary Judgment
18 (Doc. #1-51) and its Opposition to the United States’ Motion for Summary Judgment (Doc. #1-19 62), the DPUC is not preempted from investigating and regulating breaches of privacy by 20 telecommunications companies operating within Connecticut’s own borders. Accordingly, the 21 ACLU-CT’s Motion for Partial Summary Judgment should be granted.

23 II. BECAUSE THE UNITED STATES HAS DECLINED TO ASSERT THE STATE 24 SECRETS PRIVILEGE, ALL OF THE ACLU-CT’S INTERROGATORIES 25 SHOULD BE ANSWERED

26 Although the ACLU-CT only moved for summary judgment as to the Internal Policy
27 Interrogatories only, the United States’ subsequent litigation posture demonstrates that the DPUC
28 is entitled to enforce responses to all of the Interrogatories. The ACLU-CT originally moved for

1 summary judgment only as to the Internal Policy Interrogatories out of sensitivity to the United
2 States' apparent invocation of the state secrets privilege in its Complaint (Doc. #1-1) and the 3 ACLU-CT's belief that a factual dispute fairly existed as to whether or not that privilege had
4 been properly invoked. However, in its Combined Opposition Memorandum, the United States
5 makes clear that it has expressly declined to invoke the state secrets privilege. U.S. Combined
6 Opp. Mem. at 11 ("The United States does not rely on the state secrets privilege for its cause of 7 action . . . The United States has not and need not invoke the state secrets privilege . . .").
8 Because the United States has expressly decided not to invoke the state secrets privilege, and 9 because the DPUC is not preempted from investigating privacy violations by 10 telecommunications companies operating within its borders, the DPUC should properly be 11 allowed to fully investigate and enforce all of the ACLU-CT's Interrogatories.
